

Daniel Cox has written a number of books on church life, bible prophecy, the future state of the Christian believer and biblical holiness. In this book "Christians and Alcohol" the biblical standpoint of the subject is explored in depth and very definite conclusions are reached. Although the exploration is almost entirely viewed from a biblical perspective, some reference is made to the contemporary drug scene. The book pulls no punches, however, the sincere truth seeker can expect to be provoked, challenged and hopefully enlightened.

DANIEL COX was born in Bournemouth in 1939. He completed his education at the Bournemouth Grammar School. Flying mad, he was briefly the youngest civil trained pilot in the U.K. and he still cherishes the memories of numerous adventures in his Tiger Moth. Conversion, Bible College and his first pastorate occupied the next period of life, with church planting in the U.K. and Ireland to follow. More mature years saw a decade of taking seminars for African pastors in Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Burundi, Rwanda and Malawi. To fifty years of preaching there has been added ministry with the pen. Thirty-four years of happy marriage, four children, five, soon to be six grandchildren, completes the brief biographical sketch.
